

Automatic enrolment

Declaration of compliance report

July 2012 – end December 2017

We publish monthly information on automatic enrolment, derived from information submitted by employers when they complete their declaration of compliance. Employers have up to five months from their staging date to provide us with information on automatic enrolment (ie employers who have staged from September 2017 may not yet have completed the declaration process and therefore may not be included in this report). While the information is the actual data received by us, there will be employers that have reached their staging date, who have automatically enrolled their eligible jobholders and who have not yet completed their declaration. The figure for eligible jobholders (column 2i in the table below) that have been automatically enrolled is therefore likely to be higher than that shown in this report.

Re-enrolment

As of April 2016 we now also include information about employers who have complied with their re-enrolment duties. Employers are required to re-enrol their eligible staff and re-declare their compliance with us every three years.

* The rolling total of workers to whom the transitional period for schemes with defined benefits has been applied, as notified to us via employer re-declarations, has gone down. This is because (a) in February, only a small number of employers who re-declared had workers to whom they applied the transitional period and (b) a handful of large employers updated their re-declaration figures following our checks. The net effect is a reduction on last month's total.
